

Blackmun Joins Court in Recess

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry A. Blackmun of Rochester, Minn., was sworn in today as the 98th justice in Supreme Court history.

Blackmun, 61, took a seat vacant for 13 months and held in the past by Holmes, Cardozo, Frankfurter, and other judicial luminaries.

His hand on a Bible held by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the new justice swore to "do equal right to the poor and the rich" and to support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic.

Blackmun, like Burger, was named to the court by President Nixon. Their "strict constructionist" approach to the law evidently recommended them to Nixon and John N. Mitchell, the attorney general.

Burger has lived up to his billing by taking a uniformly conservative stance in his first term as chief justice. There are indications Blackmun may be more moderate than the man with whom he went to kindergarten and grade school in St. Paul.

Two other "strict constructionists," federal judges Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C., and G. Harrold Carswell of Tallahassee, Fla., were rejected by the Senate for the seat Blackmun is taking.

It has been vacant since May 1969 when Justice Abe Fortas resigned amidst suggestions that he violated judicial ethics by taking a retainer from the family of financier Louis Wolfson, later sent to prison for illegal stock manipulation.

The seat has been graced with more luminaries than perhaps any other. It has been held by Joseph Storey, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Benjamin N. Cardozo, Felix Frankfurter, Arthur J. Goldberg and Fortas, among others.

The last four occupants, Fortas, Goldberg, Frankfurter and Cardozo were Jews. Nixon broke with this tradition by nominating Haynsworth, Carswell and Blackmun, all Protestants.

Nominated by Nixon April 14, Blackmun was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, 17 to 0, May 4 and confirmed by the Senate, 94 to 0, May 12.

Pickets at Firestone Restricted

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Chancellor Richard Mobley issued Monday a temporary injunction limiting the number of employees who can picket the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. plant here.

The injunction also prohibits the "placing of tacks and other objects in the driveways, from intimidation, threats and mass picketing and the obstructions of ingress and egress to the plant."

The order, obtained by the plant, permits the placing of two pickets at three locations at the plant.

Members of Local 884 of the United Rubber Workers Union walked off their jobs Friday morning to protest the suspension of 25 employees who allegedly violated company rules concerning the punching of time clocks.

A spokesman said about 75 per cent of the plant's 340 employees were participating in the strike.

Supply Line Improved by Enemy

By MICHAEL PUTZEL Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese strengthened their supply network east of the Mekong River today with the capture of Saravane, a provincial capital in the southern Laotian panhandle.

Informed sources in Vientiane said a battalion of enemy troops attacked Saravane shortly before midnight Monday and occupied it before dawn. The government garrison of 800 men was believed withdrawing to the east.

There were no reports of casualties on either side.

Saravane lies some 70 miles northwest of Attapeu, a provincial capital the North Vietnamese captured on April 30. Both towns are on strategic highways and provide access to several land and river supply routes from North Vietnam to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Saravane, 320 miles southeast of Vientiane, was the last provincial capital still held by the government east of the Mekong in the southern panhandle. The town had been virtually surrounded by North Vietnamese troops and their Pathet Lao allies for some six years, and military analysts regarded it as almost undefendable. Attapeu also had been surrounded for years before it fell.

Military sources said the North Vietnamese apparently had refrained from attacking the two towns because of political considerations but decided to strike when the outbreak of the war in Cambodia brought about a need for more supply routes to the south.

When Attapeu was captured, Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma predicted that the fall of Saravane would follow. The government evacuated about 3,000 of the town's 7,000 inhabitants in mid-May, including civil servants, policemen and their families.

Meanwhile, a Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh said that the government was planning to resume flights into the Siem Reap airport, recaptured Sunday afternoon from North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

Government planes were strafing and bombing nearby enemy positions night and day, but the situation was reported quiet at nearby Angkor, the site of the famed ancient temple ruins and the nation's chief tourist attraction.

The spokesman said light fighting also continued today in Kompong Thom, 80 miles south-east of Siem Reap, where government forces cleared Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops from the center of town Sunday after five days of fighting. Government planes were reported strafing and bombing the enemy today.

Along Cambodia's eastern border, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces continued to uncover caches of North Vietnamese weapons.

South Vietnamese infantrymen operating near Svay Rieng, 25 miles inside the Parrot's Beak area, turned up nearly 60 tons of arms and munitions in four caches.

U.S. troops found another two tons of rifles, submachine guns and a variety of ammunition four miles inside the harbor near Shakey's Hill, where hundreds of tons of munitions and supplies already have been pulled out.

Allied officials estimate that nearly 1,500 tons of munitions and supplies have been captured by American forces operating independently or with South Vietnamese units since April 29, perhaps with half again that much seized by South Vietnamese forces operating on their own since as far back as March 20.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands reported a fairly sharp increase in battlefield activity in Cambodian border areas and in several parts of South Vietnam.

Four Americans were killed and 38 wounded in a series of clashes in Cambodia in which one enemy was known killed.

The U.S. Command reported the loss of a UH1 helicopter and a Marine Corps F4 Phantom fighter-bomber to enemy ground fire.

It said the Phantom was hit and crashed about 15 miles west of Da Nang on Sunday. One pilot was rescued and the other is missing, the command said.

Patterson Discusses Juveniles

Larry Patterson, who is presently serving as Referee for the Juvenile Court of Hempstead County, discussed the duties of his office at the luncheon meeting of the Hope Rotary Club last Friday in the Town and Country. He explained that the Juvenile Court works with the Welfare Department for children who are dependent, neglected, abused or delinquent.

"Juvenile crime in Hempstead County is on the increase," the attorney told his audience. When asked about the biggest problem, he said it is "stealing among middle-class white youth." Thrill seekers are the chief narcotics problems among the youth, also, he said.

Club President Benny Coleman introduced the speaker after he had welcomed three visiting Rotarians, John T. McRae and N. N. Daniel of Prescott, and Ted Mahr of Texarkana.

Conservation District's Worth Told

"If you live in Arkansas you live in a conservation district and we think that you, your county, your state and your nation will fare best if you get to know your district better," says Sloan Goodlett chairman of the Hempstead County Soil and Water Conservation District.

He went on to explain that your soil and water conservation district is the only local unit of government charged with the responsibility of conserving our natural resources.

The district's affairs are run by local people who understand local problems. There are five local governing board members, known as directors. The qualified electors in the district elect three directors to a three-year term and the other two are appointed by the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission. The directors are public officials but they do not draw a salary. The Hempstead County Soil and Water Conservation District Board of Directors consists of Sloan Goodlett of Ozan, Monroe Samuel of DeAnn, Richard Arnold of DeAnn, Lacie Rowe of Hope, and Moss Rowe of Washington. The District office is located at 212 Federal Building with the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The SCS provides technical assistance to the District. George F. Brown is the conservationist with the local SCS office.

Monthly meetings are held on the fourth Tuesday night of each month and all landowners, operators, and other interested persons are welcome to attend. In brief, your district is here to help you solve your land and water resource problems. Here are a few activities in which your district can help:

Flood Prevention—The district helps organize and plan local upstream watershed projects to control flooding downstream.

Soils Information—Land, like people, is better suited for some jobs than others. Your conservation district has information on the capabilities and limitations of all types of soils.

Erosion Control—Preventing loss of soil from water and wind

Hempstead County. We must make our needs and wishes known in Little Rock. I am seeking this position and responsibility because I want to serve the people of this county. Having been born, raised, and schooled here, I feel I know the wishes of the people and can represent them forcefully in the Legislature. The experience I received working as Chief Reading Clerk in the 1968 session of the Legislature plus the many contacts I made there give me a knowledge of the government that can be put to work for Hempstead County.

"In seeking this high office, the only promises I will make are to faithfully reflect the views of my constituents, to keep in close touch with you throughout the term, and to work constantly for the betterment of Hempstead County. I look forward to meeting those of you whom I do not yet know during the campaign this summer and earnestly solicit your support and vote in the primary."

erosion can keep land producing and stop sediment from filling lakes and streams.

Water Development—There is plenty of water in Arkansas. The problem is getting it in the right place for best use and keeping it clean. Your conservation district can assist you in developing water for livestock, for fish and wildlife and for recreation.

Fish and Wildlife—Technical help is available for people interested in fish and game management. Application for fish to be used in stocking ponds can be made at the district office; also applications for tree seedlings. That's what your district does — but where does it get the money to do it? The district has no taxing authority so it depends on an appropriation made by the State and donations from the local county government.

You don't have to be a farmer or a rancher to get help from your district. Anyone needing help can contact the local Soil Conservation Service at 212 Federal Building or call 777-5561.

House Sends Own Team to SE Asia

By GORDON BROWN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring it needs a new look at Indochina, the House has decided to send its own task force to Vietnam to review the progress of the war.

After three hours of wrangling and four roll calls, the House Monday approved 223 to 101 a resolution creating a special 12-member committee to investigate all aspects of U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia within 45 days.

The resolution was sponsored by Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., who is expected to lead the committee. He said it would provide the House with information independent of that gathered by presidential commissions or other study groups.

It is planned for the House committee to leave after a special group of senators, representatives and other governmental leaders returns from a Vietnam trip requested by President Nixon.

Monday night a farmer, a housewife, a minister and a retired professor left at Nixon's instigation as part of an eight-member delegation going to Vietnam for a repeat of a trip they made more than two years ago.

"It is my firm opinion," said President Nixon in a letter last March to Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, an organizer of the trips, "that it would be useful for you ... to make another visit to the same places you saw before."

The House debate Monday split along hawk-dove lines, with antiwar members contending the committee would be "carrier pigeons" of the military view of the war.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, suggested all 430 House members be armed with rifles and go to Southeast Asia to relieve two Army battalions.

The committee will be composed of six members of each party. Two members each will come from the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees, with the remainder from the House at large.

On a separate roll call the House voted against a preamble Montgomery originally had written into his resolution.

The preamble was eliminated by an amendment in the House Rules Committee. It stated the use of U.S. troops in Cambodia had "added a new dimension to the war in Southeast Asia."

While Montgomery favored elimination of the preamble, House doves sought to retain it and forced the vote in which the House sustained the elimination 210-84.

Meanwhile, Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., returned from Vietnam Monday and said President Nixon's decision to send troops into Cambodia was an "unqualified success."

Tower was one of a dozen government leaders named by the President to survey the Vietnam situation.

On his return, Tower told reporters in Los Angeles the Cambodian operation would hasten withdrawal of American troops and speed up Vietnamization of the war.

Squabble Over Shots in 2 Deaths

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The head of the Mississippi Highway Patrol has broken his official silence on the Jackson State College violence to take issue with Mayor Russell Davis' statement that city police "did not fire a shot."

Giles Crisler, state public safety commissioner, Monday night issued a statement a few hours after Davis announced a biracial committee's investigation and other reports showed city police fired no shots during a barrage that killed two and wounded nine at the college May 15.

"By inference, unnuendo and omission, the statement ... would assign exclusive responsibility for the Jackson State casualties to the Mississippi Highway Patrol," Crisler said. "I reject this as being a prejudicial distortion of the truth."

In a statement released by his office, Crisler said, "The fact that the mayor's committee did not have subpoena power to compel the attendance of witnesses gives the inquiry a personal rather than official character."

"The Mississippi Highway Patrol went to Lynch Street at the specific request of Mayor Davis. Our mission was to support the Jackson city police in a joint effort to preserve the peace. This, we did."

Davis said his statement was based on testimony given a biracial investigating committee and "all other reports given to me by others concerned with various aspects of the investigation ..."

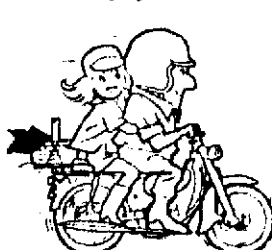

"This should say to all persons of our community that we do have a well-disciplined, well-trained police department and one that can be trusted to act in a professional manner under all circumstances, however difficult they may be," he said.

Davis appointed the biracial committee of five attorneys to investigate the incident and said the district attorney and circuit court had reviewed the report and found it "to have been done impartially, dispassionately and with restraint."

The investigation report has not been made public, but Davis said he felt the role of city police should be publicized.

"After all is said and done we settle back to the business of developing the city," he said, "the Jackson police department is going to be here in their capacity and responsibility of providing protection for life and property for all of our people."

Davis called on all citizens to work together for law and justice and not allow troubles to polarize the population.

real long look at it." A House vote on the extension was postponed two weeks ago and has yet to be rescheduled. Pending legislation may eventually increase the cost of the Golden Eagle from $7 to $10, but even that would be a bargain for frequent visitors.

Interior Department spokesmen say they have no way of knowing exactly how many people visited national recreation areas using the Golden Eagle, or how often or how long they stayed. But nearly 681,000 of the passes were sold in fiscal 1969.

A survey made in 1967 estimated the average vacation group included three or four people and spent five or six days in the national recreation areas.

Golden Eagle holders, in contrast, spent an average of 13 days in federal areas, the survey estimated.

An Interior Department spokesman said inquiries about the Golden Eagle were flowing in recently at the rate of about 500 a week.

He says that other operators have found the situation "entertaining — perhaps I should say amusing — from the start."

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP Television Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's summer soldiers are waiting impatiently in the network wings for their moments in the limelight, mostly July and August.

Some are veterans pulled out of retirement for new duty: Gomer Pyle will be back in CBS's boot camp. "He and She" has been recalled for short, hot weather duty as has "Wild, Wild West." The Smothers Brothers will try to be topical, relevant and funny without being really controversial in an ABC trial run.

Des O'Connor already has taken over the summer "Music Hall," and Jim Nabors' company will give way on July 2 to a comedy-variety hour called "Happy Days." This, however, can hardly count as a showcase for new faces since its stars are Louis Nye of the original Steve Allen variety hour and Bob and Ray who have been doing TV comedy since the days of kinescopes.

About the only straw hat showcase will be Glen Campbell's CBS Sunday night hour which will be occupied for two months starting July 5 by a show called "Comedy Tonight." A young New York comic named Robert Klein will be getting his first real big shot at the mass audience.

Klein, 28, is a monologist with a flair for sharp, satirical comment. For the past couple of years he has been on the talk-show circuit—a dozen appearances with Johnny Carson plus repeated turns with Merv Griffin, Joey Bishop, David Frost and Ed Sullivan.

Klein, a former schoolteacher who studied drama at Yale, is currently rehearsing, taping and worrying.

"We hope for a show with a point of view," he said during a rehearsal break. "We will have more comedy than variety and some satire. We're developing, for instance, a 'man against...' segment. One of the first will take on repairmen. Rodney Dangerfield will play a cave-man mechanic confronted with his first wheel—it has gone flat."

A problem of being funny and sharp these days is that "somebody in the audience is going to be offended the minute you step out on a stage," Klein believes, but in order to avoid some protests, Klein and the show's writers have invited a mythical people.

"We have invented the Yaknes," he said. "They have no national pride, are a bunch of clods and love to be insulted. But with my luck I'll get a bunch of mail that starts, 'My father was a Yakne and I resent ...'"

Few are called as summer replacements and even fewer make much of an impact. Glen

HER GIFTS TOO CHEAP

Dear Helen: I am 19 and work in an office with three salesmen. One is 27, very good looking and single. Though I heard he had a steady girl, I fell for him. After about six months, when he didn't ask me out, I finally asked him for a date. He took me for a ride, tried to "park" but I acted very ladylike.

When he didn't ask me again, I finally invited him to my apartment for dinner. And this time things were different.

But his girlfriend found out, he confessed and apologized to her, and I lost again. I gave him a Christmas gift and he didn't even send me a card. But later I asked him to take me to a movie and he did, ending up again at my apartment.

This time his girlfriend wrote me a nasty letter, telling me to stop throwing myself at her man. I guess he's afraid of her because he won't accept my invitations now.

Do you think she has a right to manage his life, being that she isn't married to him? If he didn't want me, why did he take me out when I suggested it? — Mad

Dear Mad: ...Because a man often takes what is thrown at him, whether he really wants her or not. You'd better start learning, dear, that give-aways are seldom valued. — H.

Dear Helen: Parents wonder why their children confide in friends before bringing their problems to their mother or father. It's because friends don't lecture or make judgments. They don't always answer, "It's not proper," or "Don't be foolish."

I asked my mother how I could get this boy I liked to notice me, and she answered, "You're too young to date any way." I'm 15 and, besides, I wasn't thinking about a date—just learning how to talk to boys.

Once I read a book a girl who had the kind of mother more mothers should be. When this girl asked her how to deal with a boy friend who wanted too much, the mother gave her two answers: One as a mother, one as a friend. They both came out the same, but the girl didn't think she was being bossed by a shocked and scared Mama. It seems like to many parents think they have to play the role of Mr. and Mrs. Know-it-all when they could get much farther with their kids by using some humanness.

I wonder how they'd like a boss at work who treated them the way they treat their children?

I don't want a "pal" for a parent, but I sure would love to have a wise, listening-type friend! — DAUGHTER

Dear Parent: Read and heed! Don't ever forget that friendship is the leaven to love — H.

Dear Helen: This is an answer to "Over-Punished Sue" who wanted a whipping because it was faster (and just as effective) as being grounded for two months.

When I do something wrong, my parents give me a long talk, which hits harder than a licking. But what is even worse is knowing that I've let them down, and therefore hurt them.

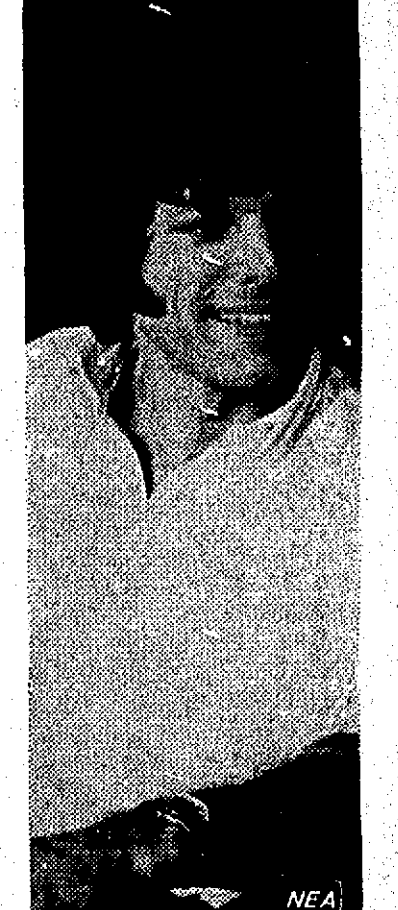

Hurling my folks is the worst punishment I could get, because I LIKE them, and you can't stand hurting your friends. So I try not to.

It seems like spanking, and real rigid restrictions are just "getting even." That "long talk" is all I need to set me straight. — DONNA

Flood Suit May End Wednesday

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood's $3.1 million antitrust suit against baseball is expected to end Wednesday after rebuttal testimony by the executive director and counsel of the players' association and Bill Veeck, former big league club owner.

The defense finished its case Monday with a complete day of testimony by Dr. John Clark, an economist from the Arthur Little firm of Cambridge, Mass., who did an involved analyses of certain aspects of baseball.

After Jay Topkis, one of Flood's lawyers, finishes cross examination of Dr. Clark Tuesday, both Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, and Dick Moss, counsel for the group, were due to take the stand.

Veeck is expected to be the final witness Wednesday morning as both sides have told Judge Irving Ben Cooper the Federal Court case will be completed Wednesday.

Both sides will file written summations with the judge and it may be some time before a verdict is announced. No matter what the outcome, it is expected the case will be appealed to a higher court by the loser.

Dr. Clark said player salaries had increased from $19,500 in 1965 to $24,957 in 1969 and $28,088 in 1970 which actually became $28,376 with the addition of newly-won minimum salary increases.

Speaking of the pension fund by which a five-year player gets $300 a month at the age of 50 or $772.50 at 65 and a 20-year-play-er gets $800 at 50 and $1,945.11 at 65, Dr. Clark said Flood's current status as a 12-year-man would give him a monthly pension of $1,625.11 at the age of 65.

Dr. Clark testified from a percent analysis of baseball's revenue and expenses that the net margin (profit) had declined from 12.5 per cent in 1965 (up to 14.5 in 1966) to 3.7 in 1969. The figures showed player salaries and pension represented 20.5 per cent of costs (an increase of only 2 per cent from 1965) while costs of selling and general administrative expenses rose 4.4 per cent in the same period.

Dr. Clark testified the majors spent $31,074,000 on player development and minor league operations in 1969 and that represented 25.2 per cent of operating revenue. Although total revenue figures were confidential, a little simple arithmetic revealed major league total operating revenue from tickets, radio-TV, concessions and advertising approximated $124 million and the net before taxes was about $4.5 million.

Dr. Clark followed the testimony of most baseball executives when he said elimination of the reserve system, which binds a player to a club for life, and most proposed modifications of the system would result in "the stronger teams getting stronger and the weaker teams getting weaker."

The economist testified the cost of developing an average big leaguer was $316,000 and that only seven per cent of those signing pro contracts made it to the majors. He said such figures made baseball a unique business operation.

Travelers Take Over League Lead

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Joe DiFazio blanked Memphis on four hits and Arkansas won 5-0 to take first place in the Texas League's Eastern Division here Monday night.

DiFazio, winning his sixth game in seven decisions, allowed no Memphis runner to get past first base.

Eddie Crosby slapped a two-run home run for Arkansas in the second inning.

In the seventh, Bill Stein singled home two runs and a ground ball by Wayne Dees accounted for the final Travelers run in the same inning.

In other games, San Antonio 13-7.

Mets and Brewers Win Only Games

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
All good things must come to an end and so must all bad ones. A good thing ended for Houston's Jack Billingham Monday night and it helped a bad one end for the New York Mets. Billingham was duelling Jim McAndrew in a scoreless match through five innings and had extended his personal shutout streak to a healthy 25 innings. Then Art Shamsky did a very unhealthy thing to the streak, cracking a two-run homer that carried the Mets to a 2-0 victory over the Astros.

Shamsky's shot not only ended Billingham's good thing but also halted New York's bad one—a five-game losing streak. It was New York's fourth straight victory over the Astros—two more than the Mets managed against Houston all of last year. And it came in the Astrodome where the Mets were 0-6 en route to their World Championship in 1969.

McAndrew allowed just five singles and had his only trouble spot in the seventh inning when the Astros bunched three of their hits. But a double play pitch to Jimmy Wynn pulled him out of the jam.

The victory moved McAndrew's record to 2-4. Billingham is 3-1.

In the only other game scheduled Monday, Milwaukee trimmed the Chicago White Sox 5-2 with Tommy Harper's first-pitch homer setting the pace.

Lew Krausse scattered six hits to pick up his fourth victory with the Brewers making it easy by bunching four hits for four runs in the third inning.

Ed Herrmann homered for the White Sox.

Clay Cool to Latest Appeal Move

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cassius Clay says he isn't interested in an 18-hour pass from the U.S. Supreme Court that would allow him to go to Canada to fight Joe Frazier for the heavyweight title.

"I don't want to fight under forced conditions," Clay said Monday after he learned his attorney had appealed to the Supreme Court to allow the deposed champion to go to Canada to meet Frazier, his successor to the championship.

Clay's attorney, Chauncey Eskridge of Chicago, said in an appeal filed Monday with Justice Hugo L. Black that Clay's resources are depleted, and noted that the former champion would be out of the country only 18 hours for the fight in Canada.

Eskridge said he made the application to the Supreme Court because he had an offer for a fight in Canada. "I have permission from Canadian authorities," the attorney said.

"They will sanction the fight. If the application is granted that is the time he (Clay) will have a chance to say whether he will fight."

"I don't know anything about it," said Clay from his $90,000 home in Philadelphia.

"That's my lawyer talking and he is going to be fired for doing these things. I'm not interested in fighting until my case is settled. I'm not even thinking of fighting."

Eskridge, speaking by telephone from Chicago, said he had not talked with Clay before filing the appeal. "When a lawyer files an application in this court he doesn't always talk to his client. I did it on my own."

Eskridge agreed, however, that if Clay formerly disavows the application for freedom to travel the issue will be dead legally.

Clay, who was stripped of his title after he was convicted for refusing induction in the Army, said last week he isn't worried about money. "I'm making more money now than I would if I was fighting every Friday," he said.

The undefeated champion, who insists he is retired and that Frazier is the champion, said all he wants from the Supreme Court is a decision on his appeal from the draft evasion conviction.

He claims to be a Black Muslim minister and is appealing on religious grounds. He adopted the name Muhammad Ali and has been lecturing in various sections of the country.

2 Brother Teams to Campaign on the Tournament Trail

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer
CHICAGO (AP) Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:
Two brother combinations have announced their intentions to play as teams in the National Four-Ball Championship of the PGA's Tournament Players Division.

Dave and Mike Hill will make up one team with Dick and John Lotz as the other.

Some other major pairings for the team championship at Le-gonier, Pa., July 23-26 include George Archer and Bobby Nichols, who won the last Four-Ball title two years ago, the formidable pair of host pro Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, and Gene Littler and Ken Still, who won the CBS Golf Classic.

Other top pairings include Bob Charles and Bruce Devlin, Billy Casper and Bert Greene, Gardner Dickinson and Sam Snead, Larry Hinson and Bunky Henry, Bob Lunn and Dave Stockton, Tony Jacklin and Bert Yancey, Bob Murphy and Lee Elder, Grier Jones and John Miller, Dale Miller, Dale Douglass and Hale Irwin, and Tom Weiskopf and R.H. Sikes.

Since Feb. 15, almost four months ago, Billy Casper has played in only four tournaments in this country. Illness, injury and other commitments have kept him away from the tour.

And the Masters champion was listed as a doubtful starter in this week's Western Open.

"I guess I keep hoping for a miracle," said Ken. Venturi. Venturi won the 1964 U.S. Open at Washington, D.C., then was stricken by a circulatory problem in his hands which all but ruined his brilliant career.

"I wake up with a different pair of hands every day," Venturi said.

"Sometimes I play a round like I did seven or eight years ago. Then I play like a 15-handicapper. I'd like to get it back, maybe just for a little while, to show some of these young players who don't know me just what I'm capable of."

Qualifying Rounds Begin for Open

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Qualifying was set to continue at seven sites today for the U.S. Open Golf Tournament—with more surprises in store and disappointment lurking for other big-name players.

A surprise Monday came at Dallas where Tom Kite Jr., a University of Texas sophomore, outshot the pros and won the first of six qualifying berths. Kite was medalist with a five-under-par 70-69-139.

Disappointment came to Ken Venturi, the 1964 Open champion, at Charlotte, N.C. Non-exempt for the first time since he won, Venturi failed to qualify by shooting an eight-over-par 75-75-150.

A total of 39 qualified at six sites Monday and 77 more were to qualify today. These 116 will join 34 exempt players for the Open at Chaska, Minn., June 18-21.

The major qualifying site today was Chicago where 139 golfers tried for 35 spots. The players included former Open champions Tommy Bolt, Jack Fleck and former Masters winners Gary Brewer and Bob Goalby and Dave Stockton, Jim Colbert, Larry Hinson, Marty Fleckman and Doug Sanders.

Tom Nierpore, Paul Harney, Grier Jones and Bill Farrell were among 107 trying to 13 spots at New York.

Pros beaten by Kite, but qualifying, at Dallas Monday were Bob Dickson, 139, and Rives McBee, 142. Terry Dill was first alternate at 144, and John Schlee failed to qualify with 148.

Among the 16 qualifying at Charlotte were pros Lou Graham, 135; Kel Nagle, 136; Bert Greene, 137, Bobby Mitchell, 139 and Bob Lunn, 139. Charlie Sifford shot a 145 and was one of four alternates.

Tour veteran Dow Finsterwald was one of three to qualify at Denver. He shot a one-over-par 145.

Amateur David Graham's two-under-par 140 was the medal score of five qualifiers at Cincinnati, including Sam Snead and his nephew, Jess, each with a 142.

Amateur Vic Loustalo of Sacramento shot a two-over-par 144 at Hesperia, Calif., to be the best of seven qualifiers. One of the others was pro Jerry Barber, with 148.

Assistant club pro Bob Johnson of Tacoma, Wash., with a three-under-par 139, and amateur Pat Fitzsimons of Salem, Ore., with 142, earned the two qualifying spots at Portland, Ore.

Yacht Race Costs Boat Owner Plenty

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer
NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — After nearly 120 years of international battles by sailors, the America's Cup is overgrown with barnacle-encrusted tradition.

For one thing, the Yankees always win. For another, it takes a fortune to put a contender on the starting line. And the Cup races off this historic port traditionally draw an immense fleet of spectators.

A new chase for the baroque silver mug began this week with preliminary trials on Long Island Sound. After that, the boats move to Newport for the long, hard voyage before one challenger and one defender meet in the best-of-7 race finals in mid-September.

"It is the question of world yachting supremacy which is at issue," says Australian naval architect Alan Payne.

This year's Cup racing, the first in three years, is again in 12-meter craft, racing machines about 65 feet long with a soaring spread of sail, built under a complicated formula. However, there is agitation for change in the design rules.

One tradition has already fallen: Two nations, France and Australia, have challenged instead of the usual one, and will battle it out to see which is the better. They are bringing all new boats—France and Gretel II.

The costs have not prevented the gathering of three would-be U.S. defenders—Valiant and Heritage, both newly built, and the '87 defender, Intrepid, which has undergone radical surgery.

"We're assuming we have the biggest spectator fleet we ever had," says Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. M.R. Dumas. "If France wins the right to challenge, I'm sure the spectator fleet would go way over 4,000 boats."

The Coast Guard which has seen everything in spectator gatherings from amphibian German autos to 300-foot Navy warships, cannot bring in most of its patrol vessels until the September finals.

This traffic cop force will include 35 vessels ranging from 40-foot utility boats to 320-foot cutters, plus helicopters. They must protect a triangular course over which the competing 12s will cover more than 24 miles each race.

Aboard the 12s you'll find a crew of 10 or 11 men so well drilled they take orders by hand signals. Up forward is a group of three to handle the big overlapping genoa jibs, rig the spinners and lend a hand on the winches below decks.

Further aft is a man who concentrates on the lines that haul the jibs and spinners up and down. Two others are assigned permanently to the winch cranks below decks, while near them are two who work on sail trim.

Furthest aft are the mainsheet man whose job is to trim the mainsail, the navigator who also helps out on backstays and the helmsman who has complete command of the boat.

The cost of the competition, ranging up to $1 million per boat, is the chief reason why the number of competitors is low. And the French syndicate headed by Baron Marcel Bich may be the all-time big spenders in Cup competition.

They began more than four years ago to buy up every modern 12 available, and gather a crew. The group offered $750,000 for Intrepid after the 1967 defense, but was refused.

They brought to France men they thought could help them, including Bob Bavier, 1964 winning skipper and sailmaker Ted Hood of Marblehead, Mass. And they hired U.S. designer Britton Chance to draw plans for a boat that will never be used for anything but their trial horse testing.

The estimates of the French outlay so far range from $2 million to $5 million and the end is nowhere in sight. Baron Bich has indicated his group will challenge in 1973 and 1976 until they win.

The boats, which must be entirely a product of their own country, can cost up to $400,000, what with designer and tank testing fees, skilled workmen at $10 hourly and sails by the lockerful. There also are the food and housing of 30 men or so for three or four months—not in expensive in this resort of the wealthy—plus costs of a motorboat tender and yard haulout bills.

The National Fisherman Magazine has several times urged changing the Cup rules to less expensive and more sensible boats like the fishing schooner types of a few generations ago.

The magazine recently recommended a book on the America's Cup to its readers, but said, "We offer this book with our tongue at least part way into our cheek because we can't get all that worked up over spending hundreds of thousands of man hours and dollars to keep a big ugly piece of silver nestled safely away in the New York Yacht Club."

And Halsey C. Herreshoff, whose grandfather Nathaniel designed six Cup defenders from 1893-1920, wants the rules changed to allow building hulls in material other than wood—steel, fiberglass, aluminum or other. He said it might be enough to simply limit the formula to standard length, displacement and sail area.

NE Louisiana and Jewell in Finals

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Northeast Louisiana and William Jewell tangle tonight in the second round of the NAIA baseball world series after taking opening round victories.

The Louisianians capitalized on three errors and slammed home three runs in the final inning to defeat Pembroke State 8-3 in Monday night's second game. Earlier, William Jewell stemmed a three-run rally in the final inning to squeak by Central Washington 4-3.

Pembroke and Central Washington play at 2 p.m. today with the nightcap winner's bracket game starting at 8 p.m.

Ranger Is Cleared in Pal's Death

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — New York Rangers' right wing Ron Stewart has been cleared of any responsibility in the death of his teammate, goalie Terry Sawchuk, a National Hockey League veteran.

A Nassau County grand jury heard nine witnesses Monday, then ruled that Sawchuk's death May 31 was accidental.

Sawchuk, 40, was hospitalized April 29, following a scuffle with Stewart. The two shared a house in East Atlantic Beach, N.Y.

Nassau County Dist. Atty. William Cahn said all the witnesses had testified that no punches had been thrown between the two players, who reportedly had been arguing over housecleaning.

Mexico vs. Romania in Soccer Final

By COLIN FROST
MEXICO CITY (AP) — The big question hanging over the World Cup soccer championships today is: dare Brazil relax in Wednesday's match against Romania.

The former world champions, heading the Group Three standings after beating England 1-0, could still theoretically be eliminated before reaching the quarter-final round.

But in practice their quarter-final place looks safe. Thus Coach Mario Zagalo may be tempted to rest his star forward Pele rather than expose him to Romania's tough-tackling defense.

The Romanians need at least a draw to stay alive in the championships. On the form book they are capable of getting it even with the Brazilians at full strength. They lost just as narrowly to England as England did to Brazil.

But if Zagalo does decide to take the risk of letting Romania win two points, he will make life still more difficult for England—and that's a course that may have its attractions in the bitter rivalry between Europe and Latin America which has marked this World Cup scene.

England and Romania each have two points from their two games so far. England, in its last match of the group on Thursday, must beat Czechoslovakia by a convincing margin to go into the quarter-finals in a style worthy of defending champions.

Wednesday's other matches have the same pattern of policy and mathematics overriding pure football interests.

The Soviet Union, meeting El Salvador in Mexico City's Aztec Stadium, was reported planning to run up a huge score to make its mastery of Group One beyond all doubt.

That would strengthen the Soviet case if, as some commentators believe likely, pressure were put on the International Federation of Football Association to allow Mexico to play its quarterfinal round in the Aztec regardless of whether it wins the group or not. Mexico and the Soviets now have three points each in Group One and a draw with Belgium Thursday would give the host country second place in the group.

In Group Two, Uruguay needs a win over Sweden to make sure of a quarter-final place. Only West Germany and Peru, who meet in Group Four, have already settled their future with two wins each over Bulgaria and Morocco.

The England players, camped in Guadalajara, complained that for the second night running Brazilian fans and Mexican supporters kept them awake with bongo drums and blaring trumpets.

The Mexican-Brazilian Alliance has come up with a joint chant of "Me-He-Co-Bra-Zil" which is not just confined to voices. Car horns blare out the rhythm in the streets of the capital and in Guadalajara, Mexico's second city.

Against Czechoslovakia, it is essential for England Manager Alf Ramsey to find a way to get goals from an attack which has produced only one in its two World Cup matches.

7-7 Deadlock in 12 Innings
DENVER (AP) — The Denver Bears of the American Association and their parent club, the Washington Senators, battled to a 7-7 deadlock Monday night in an exhibition baseball game called by agreement after 12 innings.

A Nassau County grand jury heard nine witnesses Monday, then ruled that Sawchuk's death May 31 was accidental.

Sawchuk, 40, was hospitalized April 29, following a scuffle with Stewart. The two shared a house in East Atlantic Beach, N.Y.

Draft for Hockey Stars to Begin

MONTREAL (AP) — The National Hockey League's annual meeting swings into high gear today with the intra-league draft and a better financial deal for amateur hockey in the offing.

In today's draft each of the 12 clubs is allowed to protect 18 players, with goaltenders and first-year pros exempt. Draft price is $30,000 per player, with each club allowed to lose only one player.

There were a few surprises when the clubs filed their protected lists Monday night, with the New York Rangers leaving three prominent players unprotected.

The Rangers did not protect forwards Ron Stewart and Don Marshall and defenseman Tim Horton. However, the team stands to lose only one of the three veterans under the draft rules.

Also on the outside looking in will be veteran right winger Claude Provost of the Montreal Canadiens, defenseman Pat Quinn of the Toronto Maple Leafs, forward Billy Dea and defenseman Poul Yopell of the Detroit Red Wings, Bill Speer of the Boston Bruins and left winger Reg Fleming of the Philadelphia Flyers.

Provost has said he will retire rather than join another team.

Al Arbour, appointed coach of the St. Louis Blues last week after a fine record as a defenseman and captain with the club, appeared on the team's protected list despite the fact he said Monday he has no intention of filling the dual capacity of coach and player.

Apparently Scotty Bowman, St. Louis general manager, feared Arbour would be drafted by another club if left unprotected.

Meanwhile, officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association were meeting with NHL executives in an effort to amend the current pro-amateur agreement before Thursday's amateur draft.

It was learned that the new ground rules would allow the CAHA to gain the normal $3,000 for each of the first 72 amateurs drafted. However, under the new proposal the CAHA would obtain another $3,000 to funnel back to the club level if the draftee was signed to a pro contract and an additional $4,000 if the player performs in at least 25 NHL games in his first season.

Monday, Wren Blair, Minnesota North Stars' general manager, announced that 41-year-old goalie Lorne "Gump" Worsley had signed a one-year contract for next season.

The NHL rules committee also had its innings, with the group cutting another swath from the curved hockey stick blades.

The committee cut the maximum curvature allowed to one-half inch from the one-inch maximum allowed last season and the 1½ inches permitted two years ago.

A new rule to be tried during the preseason exhibition schedule was proposed for approval by the league governors today.

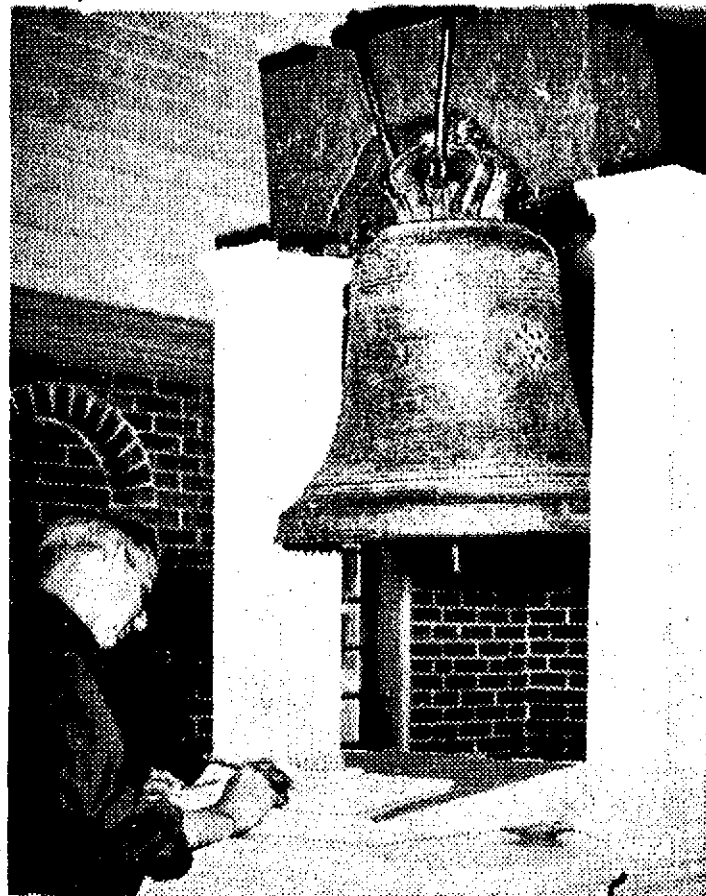

The new rule will create a "free facemask" in the hope of reducing the number of delays in games by players freezing the puck against the boards, shooting the puck into the crowd or goalies continually stopping play by smothering the puck instead of clearing or passing it.

In a free facemask, the referee will place the puck on the center spot of the corner facemask circle of the team committing the infraction. At a given signal from the referee, the player taking the facemask will play the puck in any manner other than taking a direct shot on the defending goal from within the circle.

Also proposed was that white-based uniforms be worn by the home teams and colored uniforms by the road teams. This is a reversal to the pattern used now.

Also awaiting approval by the governors is a doubling of fines for automatic penalties.

It approved, a misconduct penalty now will cost the player involved $50, a game misconduct $100, a match penalty $200, a major penalty causing injury $50, and penalties dealing with altercations up to a $100 level from the current $50.

HISTORIC BELL is often referred to as the "Liberty Bell of the West." It's 11 years older than the one in Philadelphia and was a gift from France to Illinois in colonial days. A recent court hearing settled a dispute between Missouri and Illinois, giving bell's ownership to Illinois. It is housed in a tiny shrine on Kaskaskia Island, Ill.

Theft of U.S. Bonds at Record High, and Insurance Ban Looms

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Theft of government securities has become so widespread that some insurance firms have balked at covering U.S. Treasury bonds, the Federal Reserve Board says.

Losses reached $20 million last year for banks in New York City alone. Wall Street brokerage firms were hit hard also, the board said.

The FBI, keeper of the only full list of which securities are stolen, won't make its data available to banks that may be confronted with a suspicious bond, the board told Congress.

The report was sent privately from the Federal Reserve Board to a House investigating subcommittee. A copy was obtained by the Associated Press.

The board made no mention of Mafia involvement in the rash of thefts from the multibillion-dollar flow on Wall Street of Treasury bills, bonds and notes—each a type of loan to the government that can be cashed in or sold.

But it said insurance firms have been hiking their fees for covering the government bonds in Wall Street hands since last fall and, in several cases, have refused to furnish any more protection.

The theft losses last year were substantially higher than any other year in history, the report said.

It cited the $13 million disappearance from the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. as well as two other New York bank cases that each topped $1 million.

Many Treasury bills are payable to the bearer and can be cashed easily. Other stolen securities have been used as collateral to get loans at banks ranging from Miami, Fla., to a small town in central Pennsylvania. Still other stolen bonds are carried overseas for sale.

The Federal Reserve Board report was sent in response to inquiries by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of a House government operations subcommittee.

The report said the Treasury had stopped keeping its central list of stolen securities 12 years ago, although it said several regional banks in the Federal Reserve system had renewed an informal checklist last fall to block attempts to cash stolen Treasury bills and bonds.

The FBI has a computerized list of stolen securities, but it will give out the information only to police agencies and not to banks, the board said.

The report recommended the FBI data be made available directly to banks, brokers and other financial firms. If this can't be done, it said some other federal agency should start keeping a computerized check-forms by the road teams. This is a reversal to the pattern used now.

Also awaiting approval by the governors is a doubling of fines for automatic penalties.

It approved, a misconduct penalty now will cost the player involved $50, a game misconduct $100, a match penalty $200, a major penalty causing injury $50, and penalties dealing with altercations up to a $100 level from the current $50.

Coastal Bermuda Promoted

Coastal Bermuda grass plantings in Hempstead County this year, according to Calvin J. Caldwell, county Extension agent.

The idea for increasing the acreage of Coastal Bermuda grass originated with N.B. Coleman, local fieldman for the Hope branch of the Nashville Production Credit Association. Coleman discussed the idea with Cecil Bittle, assistant director in charge of the Southwest Branch Experiment Station, and Caldwell. They agreed that there was a definite need for more acres of coastal.

The local PCA agreed to purchase a machine for digging and planting the sprigs, provided a person could be found that would take the machine on a lease-purchase agreement. W.Y. Jackson of Patmos in south Hempstead County agreed to buy the digging and sprigging machine if enough farmer interest could be created.

Ideas, no matter how good, says Caldwell, must be accepted in order to make them work. So the next step toward making the idea a reality was to determine farmer interest. On Feb. 10, farmers and others interested in the project were invited to a meeting where the plan was explained. Representatives of the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration, University of Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station, and Agricultural Extension Service were present and discussed the value of Coastal Bermuda in a cattle program.

Enough interest was shown by the farmers, so the machine was purchased by PCA and Jackson took it as agreed.

To date, 250 acres have been planted to Coastal by 20 farmers at a price of $25 per acre. The largest acreage was a 46 acre plot by Troy Burson of Route 1, Fulton. The average is about 10 acres per farm.

Jackson said much more could have been planted had the weather been favorable.

Liner U. S. Mothballed, Plane Victim

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The proud liner United States, which holds the record for the fastest transAtlantic crossing by a ship, is being placed in dead storage—a victim of the jet age and the fiscal balance sheet.

The liner lost more than $4 million last year despite a $12 million federal subsidy.

The United States Lines said Monday it will pay the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority $9,000 per month to keep the 18-year-old superliner at the Norfolk terminal.

She was rejected for storage

THIS IS A TRAILER PARK? Yes. To many minds, a trailer park means shiny metal boxes parked in long, undistinguished rows. This one, however, midway between Los Angeles and San Diego, Calif., is different. Wood exteriors give the mobile units an un-trailer look.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Taking Along The Mrs.

Comedians have spun endless tales about the travelling businessman who takes along his secretary, claiming she is his wife. But for tax purposes, the situation may be just the opposite. The businessman may take along his wife and claim she is his secretary. His object, of course, would be to deduct her travelling expenses on his next income tax return.

Is this permissible? Are her expenses properly deductible? Consider this case:

A sales executive took his wife along to a series of conventions, where she kept him company and attended to the usual social amenities. However, she took no part in any business or convention activities.

Her husband tried afterward to deduct her expenses, but a court ruled that he could not. The court felt that, as far as business was concerned, he might just as well have left her home.

Even if a wife provides something more than mere companionship, there still may be insufficient grounds for her husband to take a tax deduction. Suppose she types up occasional notes for him. Or goes along to convention luncheons and dinners. Neither of these services would justify a deduction, according to a ruling of the Internal Revenue Service. As one court put it:

"Being 'helpful' is not enough; a wife's functions while travelling with her husband must be 'necessary' to the conduct of his business before a deduction will be allowed for her expenses."

By contrast, another wife did play a key role in her husband's work while he travelled in Europe, putting in as much time on the job as he did. Furthermore, their itinerary was chosen solely for business reasons, with no detours for "places of interest." In fact, she did no sightseeing at all. Weighing these circumstances, a court concluded that her trip really was a business necessity and her expenses deductible. The court treated these expenses just like telephone bills or postage or any other of the costs of making a living.

Hamlet and the fair Ophelia had taken on none other than Guildenstern and Rosenkranz, the best pair in Denmark in a set game at Castle Elsinore.

Hamlet was happy. Not only had he and Ophelia been playing well but good fortune had attended them and they were well ahead. He looked at his hand and was soliloquizing to himself "To slam or not to slam. That is the question." It was a happy soliloquy. The not-so-melancholy Dane was looking at a mighty good hand.

Guildenstern the dealer could see that Hamlet was happy and decided a four-heart preempt was in order. This took care of Hamlet's slam problem. He settled for a four-spade bid.

Guildenstern opened the king of hearts and continued with the ace. Rosenkranz played the 10 of clubs and Guildenstern led the ace in response to the obvious signal. Hamlet ruffed and played out his ace of spades. Then he paused for another soliloquy.

"To play trumps or not to play trumps, that is the question. For whether 'tis better to suffer the peril of a diamond ruff or losers in both trumps and diamonds will soon be known."

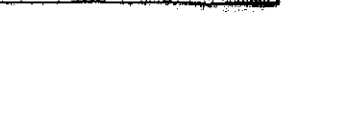

Then Hamlet, who was a great dummy player, led the ace and king of diamonds, ruffed a diamond, ruffed a club back to his hand, cashed his two top trumps and led diamonds until Rosenkranz ruffed for the final defensive trick.

Had Hamlet led a second trump the play would have been a tragedy indeed.

Asthmatic Bronchitis Caused by an Allergy

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—Can a person ever be cured of asthmatic bronchitis? What causes it? Could it make you lose your voice or feel tired?

A—This disease is caused by an allergy. It can be controlled rather than cured. When the offending allergen has been identified it should be avoided. Desensitizing injections may be given and various drugs may be helpful. The chief symptoms are shortness of breath, cough and wheezing. Fatigue and loss of voice may occur as secondary symptoms.

Q—I have chronic asthmatic bronchitis. Could this cause my chest, back and arms to ache constantly? How much of my shortness of breath could be caused by cigarettes?

A—Asthmatic bronchitis may cause some soreness in your chest and abdomen but, since this pain is not constant as a rule nor present in the back or arms, some other cause for your symptoms should be sought.

The best way to tell how much of your trouble is caused by smoking is to quit and see how much improvement there is. There is

A—Your hand has moved up into the slam zone. Your partner has indicated side strength in diamonds. We recommend a jump to five clubs but wouldn't object to four clubs. Three no-trump would be a frightful bid.

Smith in Complaint Against Ch 4

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gerald L. K. Smith said Monday that he would complain to the Federal Communications Commission because television station KARK-TV at Little Rock had refused to broadcast a program May 31 in which he appeared.

The program was "Challenge 70," an interview produced and sponsored by the Little Rock Jaycees.

Smith said the program was dropped because "it was too hot."

Robert L. Brown, vice president and general manager of the station, said, however, that the decision to cancel the program had not been caused by any controversial material in it.

SCA's Records Criticized

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A report of the Legislative Joint Auditing Committee staff says that financial records at State College of Arkansas in Conway were found in a chaotic condition.

The report, prepared in April, indicated that the college will run $113,741 into the red in this year's operations.

The audit began in January, but the work still is in progress, with auditors forced to check correspondence and other source documents, rather than ledgers, to trace down some transactions.

The General Ledger is supposed to reflect all transactions, but until a few weeks ago none had been recorded at SCA since last July 1, the report said.

The Arkansas Gazette reported today that SCA's Board of Trustees, in a meeting almost eight weeks ago, received a report critical of the college's bookkeeping.

Newsman tried to get in as observers of that meeting, but college officials excluded the reporters with the explanation that personnel matters would be discussed.

The state's Freedom of Information law allows state boards and commissions to discuss personnel matters in closed meetings.

Prosecutor Jeff Mobley of Russellville, whose district includes Conway, said he had read the audit report and had talked with auditors.

Mobley said he had come to the impression that the college's account books were "sloppy to the point of being unreal, unreasonable and ridiculous."

Silas D. Snow, SCA president, said Monday that he had not seen the report. But he added, "There's nothing out of the ordinary."

The committee's staff report said, however, that SCA's records were fragmentary and that the college's accounting system lacked any internal controls.

Mobley said that on the basis of information given to him, he had instructed state auditors to make a thorough examination of every cash fund at the college.

Federal auditors also have conducted a routine audit of the school. The Gazette said that federal funds had reportedly been found to have been spent in violation of regulations.

If the federal government disallows such expenditures, usually they are carried as liabilities that must be settled with the government.

Findings of the federal audit were given to college officials last week "for their rebuttal," according to a member of the auditing office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The legislative audit staff's report said that auditing of federal funds "must be done through source documents and other related correspondence" because they were not recorded in the General Ledger.

A large file of letters from vendors has been compiled, including letters from some expressing concern that they have not been paid what is owed, the report said.

"A further check revealed that invoices dating back to October were not paid until February registration fees were received," the report said. "Consequently, invoices from February and March are being held pending collection of fees."

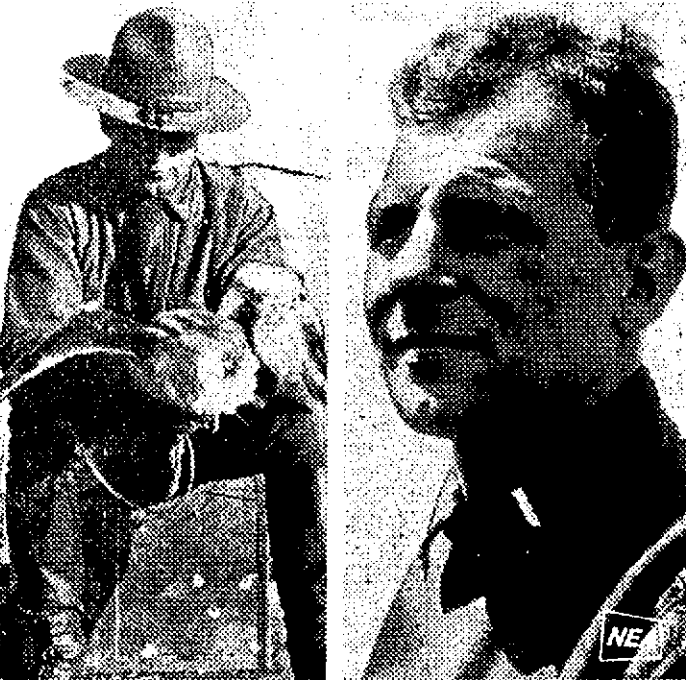

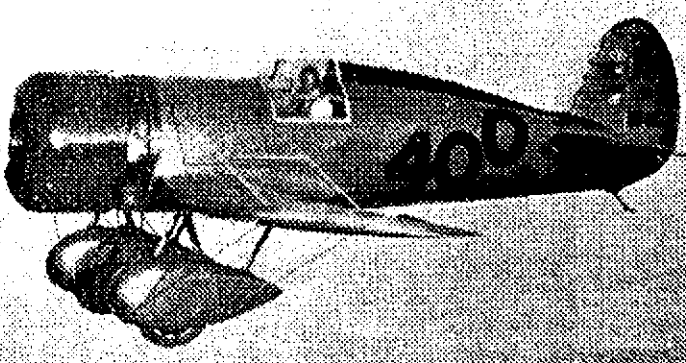

Snow said that there was "no evidence of a shortage of that strategic arms limitation talks kind, I assure you."

The preliminary work of the state audit resulted in charges being filed against a former chief cashier at the college for embezzlement.

Mobley has charged Robert L. Pruitt, 30, of Phoenix, Ariz., with embezzling $28,655. He said, however, that condition, on the underseas long-range missile system—although he had nothing to do with the case against Pruitt.

AFTER A CAREER spanning more than 50 years in aviation, Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle (USAF, Ret.) this year added yet another award to the number he has accumulated. Doolittle, right, receives the Federal Aviation Administration's Extraordinary Service Award from FAA Administrator John H. Shaffer. The citation represents the FAA's highest honor, given for distinguished contributions to American aviation.

EARLY DAYS for Jimmy Doolittle means going back to 1918, bottom left, when he was an instructor for the Army Air Corps. Photo shows him with eagle injured when it collided with Doolittle's plane. In bottom right photo, the airman is shown after completing the first one-stop transcontinental flight in 1922. Doolittle plane, top, crashed shortly after photo was taken in 1931.

For more than a half century Jimmy Doolittle's name has been prominent in aviation. Although he has pioneered new techniques and won an impressive list of trophies, he probably will be best remembered for leading the first American bombing raid on Tokyo in 1942. These photos highlight the career of the flier who has been called one of the outstanding men of our time.

Laird Gives Allies Note on the Bomb

VENICE (AP) — U.S. officials said today Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has told Western allies the United States has just 18 months in which it must decide what to do about a Soviet speed-up in nuclear weapons.

Laird reported that Moscow had accelerated its testing since evidence of a shortage of that strategic arms limitation talks kind, I assure you."

The officials said Laird designated 1971 as a year in which the United States would suspend decisions on new military projects. Work was not going for forward, he was reported to have said, on the underseas long-range missile system—although he had nothing to do with the contracts for research and development are being let.

Kosygin Is Rumored Out as Premier

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Mail reported today that Alexei N. Kosygin will step down as Soviet Premier this month—but not now we have no facts to support it.

One of the two deputy premiers — Kiril Mazurov, 56, or Dmitri Polyansky, 53 — will take over from the ailing, 61-year-old Kosygin, according to the newspaper.

It based its report on "well-authenticated reports reaching London."

British government and Western embassy officials said they have had no new indications suggesting Kosygin's departure may be imminent.

They recalled there has been considerable speculation in and outside Moscow this year that a shakeup in the Kremlin leadership may be on the way. This could follow elections for the Soviet parliament due Sunday.

"Some day this sort of speculation is bound to prove right," one official observed. "But as of now we have no facts to support it."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) — Directors of the New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League decided Sunday to institute the automatic walk during the upcoming season.

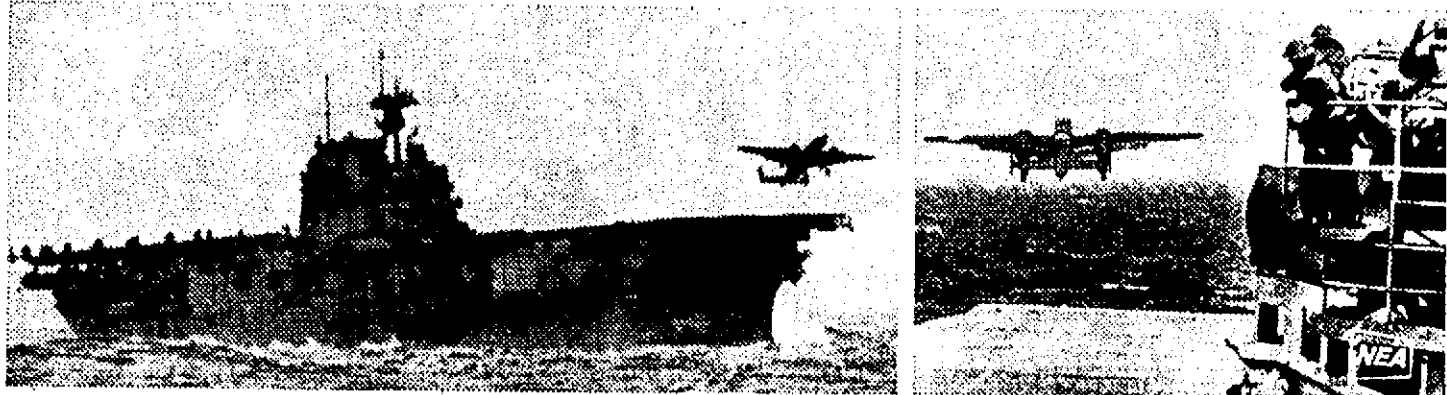

Henceforth, a batter may be walked to first base on an intentional walk instead of waiting for four pitches. The move is designed to speed up the game.

STRIKING BACK at the enemy, Jimmy Doolittle led a force of 16 B-25s to bomb Tokyo in April, 1942. These photos show pilots and planes gathered on deck of aircraft carrier Hornet, top, and Doolittle taking off, bottom, to lead the attack on Japan's capital.

AFTER BOMBING Tokyo, Doolittle's plane crashed in China. At top, Chinese rescuers crowd around the wreckage. At bottom, Doolittle sits on wing of wrecked bomber, fortunate to have escaped injury in the crash and capture by the enemy.

3 Military Men to Run Argentina

By WILLIAM H. HEATH
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina got a new military government early today after the armed forces ousted President Juan Carlos Onganía, the general they installed in a coup four years ago. Not a shot was fired, and life went on mostly as usual for the 8 million residents of Buenos Aires.

The three military commanders—Lt. Gen. Alejandro Lanusse of the army, Adm. Pedro Gnavi of the navy and Brig. Gen. Juan Carlos Rey of the air force—were sworn in as provisional leaders of the nation of 23 million people. The junta said it would name a president within 10 days.

Among those being mentioned for the presidency are Eduardo Ortiz Basualdo, the conservative president of the Supreme Court who is reported to have powerful navy backing; Justice Minister Conrado Etchebarne, who has wide support in the army, and two retired army generals, Jean Enrique Guglielmelli and Osiris Villegas, both of whom are supported by factions that believe in rapid development of heavy industry.

The junta said their basic disagreement with Onganía was "the lack of a political solution for the revolution," the term used for the 1966 coup. Speeches in the last year by Lanusse indicate that he may seek a return to some democratic procedures before very long.

Growing dissatisfaction with Onganía came to a head Monday morning when Lanusse announced that the president had refused to accept a "political plan" from the armed forces calling on him to share power with the military and civilian leaders. It appeared to suggest that a date be fixed for presidential elections. Onganía then fired Lanusse, said he would take personal command of the 135,000-man army and barricaded himself in Government House behind the loyal, heavily armed 1,200-man presidential guard.

As military units took up positions in the capital and elsewhere in the country and tanks rolled into Buenos Aires, the junta announced over the government radio station that the commanders had "resolved to resume immediately the political conduct of the country" and "invited" Onganía to resign.

Moments later, a communique said the 55-year-old president was "deposed from his duties as president of the nation."

What's New? Boyle Would Just as Soon Not Hear About It

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — If you had to name the 10 common remarks in the English language that you get most tired of hearing year after year, which would you choose?

It's a fascinating game to play, because our vocabularies become so hackneyed with dull and repetitive phrases that with some people one feels he can carry on a conversation in his sleep.

There are so many trite sayings in our day-to-day talk that it is almost impossible to narrow them down to the 10 that are the most boring, but here is a list of potential candidates: "What's new?"

"Hot enough out for you?"

"Cold enough out for you?"

"Here today, gone tomorrow."

"After all, it could be worse."

"Well, if you aren't a sight for sore eyes!"

"We simply have to get together for lunch sometime. I'm free most any day."

"Long time no see."

"I like your new suit. Too bad they didn't have one in your size."

"Speak about the devil, and look who shows up!"

Cornell Professor Swings Mace, Symbol of University Power

By WILLIAM MORRISSEY
Associated Press Writer
ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A 77-year-old professor of Romance languages has asserted the authority of Cornell University by swinging its symbol—a mace—on a young demonstrator.

Morris Bishop, Alpha Kappa professor emeritus, carried the university mace in Monday's commencement exercises here and used it to beat back a youth trying to wrest the microphones from university officials.

"The mace," Bishop related, "was originally a weapon of offense in the Middle Ages. Richard the Lionhearted used to carry one at his side all the time."

"So I saw no reason why I shouldn't use it for the same purpose. I poked him and pushed him back."

Witnesses said Bishop, a stocky man, took the 14-pound silver and gold instrument from his right shoulder and delivered a blow at the young man's side. "He stumbled back a few feet," Bishop said, "then a couple of the strong-arm boys (campus police) took him away."

Police arrested three of the demonstrators. Two, a student and a former student identified by university officials as an activist leader during his days on campus, were charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

The third man, who police said was not associated with the university, was charged with third degree assault.

The 4-foot mace is a tapered silver shaft with a gold terrestrial globe at the top. The globe is surrounded by silver ribs and a 1½-inch image of a bear holding an oak staff on top.

It was designed by Sir Eric Clements of the Goldsmith's Guild of London.

Reds Fail in Italy's Election

ROME (AP) — Italy's first regional elections have given Premier Mariano Rumor's center-left coalition government a strong boost, while the Communists did not do as well as generally expected.

The voting Sunday and Monday put Rumor's coalition in control of 12 of Italy's 15 new regional legislatures, and the four government parties got 58.2 per cent of the 32.7 million votes cast, an improvement of 2.5 per cent over the last national election in 1968.

The Communists and their allies, the Proletarian Socialist party, took 31.1 per cent of the total vote, won a majority in the legislature of the northcentral region of Emilia-Romagna, which includes Bologna, and were the biggest vote-getters in Tuscany—Florence—and Umbria. But in the latter two regions they fell short of a majority and will have to win the support of one of the center-left parties to govern.

After gaining in every major election since the war, the Communists got 27.9 per cent of the vote, a tenth of a per cent under their 1968 showing. The Proletarian Socialists lost nearly one-third of their support, dropping to 3.2 per cent. The Communists, failure to gain was believed due at least partly to a party split over the 1968 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Sniper Fire on Police Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man heading the government's probe of student deaths on the Kent State and Jackson State campuses says there is "insufficient evidence" to support officials' claims of sniper fire.

"We have at this time insufficient evidence to establish the presence of a sniper," Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard said of the May 15 deaths of two black youths in a fusillade of police bullets at Jackson State College in Mississippi.

His statement directly contradicts the report released last Thursday by Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams that said an investigation showed state troopers were shot at by a sniper before opening fire on a group of students outside a women's dormitory on the predominantly black campus.

Leonard is head of the Justice Department's civil rights division and leader of a federal investigation into the fatal shootings by law enforcement authorities of the two youths at Jackson State, four students at Kent State University in Ohio and six men in Augusta, Ga.

In an interview, Leonard was asked whether his statement could also be applied to the deaths at Kent State, where Ohio National Guardsmen said they had been fired upon by a sniper before shooting into a crowd of students demonstrating against U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

"Yes, there is insufficient evidence at Kent," Leonard replied.

The civil rights chief refused to comment on whether the probes, in the case of Kent State more than a month along, had identified the officers or guardsmen who fired the fatal shots.

But he acknowledged, in the case of Jackson State, that "procedural problems" had hindered the investigation by FBI agents and Justice Department lawyers.

"The state patrol has not provided us with the weapons, nor have members of the state patrol been offered for interrogation," he said.

Leonard implied the refusal of Mississippi officials to cooperate with the investigation will necessitate calling a federal grand jury to subpoena evidence.

Fewer difficulties are being experienced in the Kent State investigation, Leonard said, although there are "unanswered factual and legal questions." He did not elaborate.

FBI Target of Picketing by Mafia

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has agreed to take a first-hand look today at a picket line unlike any New York has ever seen. Its target is the FBI and it has been led at times by Joseph Colombo, one of the top names on the Justice Department's list of Mafia bosses.

Meanwhile, the jurist, state Supreme Court Justice George Starke, advised the picketing Italian-American group Monday to tone down the volume of its sound equipment, which has led to a court suit by East Side residents.

The FBI's neighbors are seeking a permanent injunction from Starke against the demonstrators, whom they describe as a nuisance. Among defendants in their suit is Colombo.

Far from playing the shadowy role of a big time mobster, Colombo has taken to the streets with his wife, his son and hundreds of others to protest what his lawyer claims is "a reign of FBI terrorism" against Italian-Americans.

"They want a congressional investigation of the FBI," said the attorney, Barry Ivan Slotnick.

As many as 4,500 pickets have demonstrated five nights a week outside of the FBI's Manhattan headquarters at 3rd Avenue and 69th Street, denouncing the government's chief crime-busting agency as an American "gestapo."

The demonstrations began April 30 shortly after the arrest of Joseph Colombo Jr., 23, by FBI agents. He was accused with two other men of conspiring to melt down U.S. coins and sell the silver for more than the coins themselves were worth.

Leading the first picket line was the senior Colombo, 46, identified by the Justice Department as one of the high commissioners of the Cosa Nostra and head of one of New York's five mob families.

The elder Colombo currently is free on bail on federal charges of income tax evasion and Slotnick said Colombo feels his family has had more than its share of "FBI harassment."

However, the Italian-American Civil Rights League, which organized the demonstrations, said the issue goes beyond the government's drive against individuals it regards as big-time hoodlums.

Paul Arnold, public relations director of the league, said the purported harassment has extended to small shopkeepers, to housewives, to anyone with an Italian name.

"Most of these people don't know anything about it. They've heard about it all their lives. But they don't know anyone who is a member and they're inclined to think the thing is all blown out of proportions," he said.

Arnold said he knew of one reputable woman who changed her Italian name because of frequent questioning by FBI investigators. He added that the situation is general and that his group has received inquiries from all over the country by Italian-American groups interested in joining the protest.

The local picketing led last Friday to the suit filed in behalf of 200 tenants who live in the neighborhood of FBI headquarters. They contended the demonstrators with their attendant bullhorns and other electronic equipment "constitute a nuisance injurious to health, comfort and enjoyment."

Truck-Trailer, Car Collide

Hope Police Dept. investigated an accident at 7:55 a.m. Tuesday at the corner of Division and Hwy. 4 where a trailer truck driven by Ivan Russell of Ashdown hit the rear end of a car driven by Mrs. Ilean Webb of Rt. 1, Washington.

There was considerable damage to the Webb car. Officer Marvin Artebury charged Russell with following too close to another vehicle.

New Organization's Aim to Keep People Away From Florida

By ERIC SHARP

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — While chambers of commerce woo industry to the Sunshine State, a group called Zero Population Growth is trying to keep people away.

"At the rate man is reproducing now, there will be one square foot of space for each individual in the world 700 years from now," says Dr. Seymour Block, an engineering professor at the University of Florida and ZPG spokesman.

"We don't need to add to our population problems by encouraging people to come to Florida. The state's advantages will bring plenty down on their own. Our industrial and political leaders make the mistake of failing to plan for the future. They lack the social concern to look beyond the present."

"The population will never reach such proportions because nature will solve the problem through disease and war," he says. "We would rather see it solved through more humane methods."

Block says "Americans represent five per cent of the world's population, but use 50 per cent of its resources and produce 50 per cent of the pollution."

ZPG has chapters in Jacksonville, Gainesville and Palm Beach and is starting one in Satellite Beach.

Block says ZPG hopes to convince America and eventually the peoples of the rest of the world to "replace yourselves and no more."

"I think we must encourage people to avoid having more than two children, and the best way to do that would be to make it economically advantageous for them to limit the number of children they produce," he says.

"We could give tax incentives to people who have only two children and impose penalties on those who have more. A poor person might have to pay $500 for a third child, but it might cost a rich person $5 million."

Speedup of U.S. Trials Demanded

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., charging society is being deprived of the constitutional right to a speedy trial, introduced a bill today to require federal criminal trials start within 60 days of indictment.

The North Carolina Democrat and one of the Senate's leading authorities on the Constitution said "we must take steps to make the 6th Amendment right to a speedy trial—a right so far denied to both society as well as the defendant—a reality after all these years."

Ervin said the bill, co-sponsored by Michigan Democrat Philip A. Hart, also provides "a workable and constitutional alternative" to President Nixon's preventive detention proposal now being considered by the District of Columbia.

Until recently, defense lawyers had little success invoking the speedy trial right of the Constitution. But last month the Supreme Court overturned the conviction of a Florida truck driver who was not tried until 7½ years after his arrest.

The justices did not define clearly what they consider to be too long a time, but they warned lower courts to enforce the right of a defendant to a speedy trial. Ervin's bill would go into effect in four stages, starting first with serious felonies in which defendants have been detained under high money bail and gradually requiring other felony trials in the federal courts to be held within two months. Tax, antitrust and security cases would be exempt.

Each district court would be required to establish plans to carry out the speedy trial mandate and to report to Congress the additional funds and personnel that would be necessary.

Ervin is a strong critic of the preventive detention proposal—which would allow a judge to jail a defendant without bond if he decided the accused's past record gave a reasonable indication he would commit more crimes while free.

'Golden Eagle' Is Grounded; Pay Cash at Federal Parks

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nature lovers eager to "Follow the Golden Eagle to America's Great Outdoors" are being told by embarrassed Interior Department spokesmen they'll have to get along with the old fashioned green eagle—the one on the dollar bill.

The Golden Eagle, a bargain priced admission ticket to more than 3,000 federal recreation areas, is grounded waiting for the fog to lift in the House of Representatives.

With the vacation season already well under way outdoorsmen have no choice for the time being but to pay as they go, shelling out individual fees for each day they spend in federal parks, forest and preserves.

For the past five years, vacationers have been able to purchase for $7 a Golden Eagle passport admitting a carload of people for unlimited visits to national recreation areas throughout a full year.

Single admissions, on the other hand, usually cost about $1 a day per carload.

The Golden Eagle covered areas under the Interior Department, Forest Service and U.S. Corps of Engineers. The legislation supporting it, however, expired March 31.

The Senate has approved an unlimited extension. The House version, which stalled after clearing committee, extends the Golden Eagle only until next Dec. 31.

A spokesman said the House Interior committee was not completely sold on the Golden Eagle and felt a temporary extension would allow time for "a

Jordan's King Escapes Assassins

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein escaped an assassination attempt today in the midst of fighting between the Jordanian army and Palestinian guerrillas, the Amman radio reported.

The army troops were trying to curtail guerrilla incursions into Israel.

The broadcast said Hussein's motorcade was fired upon this morning as heavy fighting raged in the streets of the capital.

Leaders of both sides worked out a cease-fire arrangement late in the morning but this was ignored and the bitter fighting raged into the afternoon.

The combatants battled with rockets, bazookas, machine guns and automatic weapons, filling the city with the crash of explosions and the bark of gunfire.

Hussein's motorcade was driving through the crossroads town of Sweileh 12 miles north-east of the capital, the radio said.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said the king's driver was wounded in the incident but gave no other details.

Jordanian authorities and the guerrilla central committee—the supreme Palestinian body—had met in Amman and agreed to an immediate cease-fire, the radio said in an earlier report. They also agreed to set up a joint operations room to "supervise and control the situation."

Court Hears Appeal of School Head

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Supreme Court heard oral arguments Monday in the appeal of a suit by Floyd Harper, 61, former principal at Gosnell High School, who claims he was fired because he disclosed that attendance records in the school district were falsified.

Harper has been trying to persuade the state Board of Education to conduct a hearing into his charges that Supt. J. W. Rea of the Gosnell School District had "intentionally and repeatedly falsified" daily average attendance figures. The allocation of state and federal education funds is based on attendance figures.

Harper appealed his case to the high court after Chancellor Murray O. Reed of Little Rock dismissed his suit, saying an investigation by a three-member committee of the state Education Board was sufficient.

Lee Ward of Jonesboro, Harper's attorney, said Monday the committee's investigation did not constitute a hearing. Harper's suit contends that under Arkansas law public hearings must be conducted in cases in which the licenses of teachers can be revoked.

Showers May Return to Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Afternoon heating combined with increased Gulf moisture in the state was expected to produce afternoon and evening showers in Western Arkansas today.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said, however, that the remainder of the state would continue to have fair skies through tonight.

High pressure, which dominated the state for the past three days, is now slowly moving out of the area, the bureau said.

As the pressure center moves eastward, the bureau said, scattered showers will increase in the state.

Highs Monday ranged from 81 at Harrison to 89 at Texarkana. Overnight lows ranged from 58 at El Dorado to 70 at Texarkana.

Indians on Alcatraz Lose Power

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Indians holding Alcatraz island plan to start conducted tours of the former federal prison site to raise money to finance their occupation.

The proposed business venture appeared headed for trouble. Thomas Hannon, regional head of the General Services Administration which still technically controls the island, said no boats of any kind have been authorized to land there.

He said he may ask the Department of Justice to halt the tours, which start today.

The Indians said each tourist would be required to pay $5 and sign a waiver releasing the Indians from all responsibility for injuries.
